Long COVID treatment: What does the evidence tell us so far?

<https://info.wellsky.com/long-covid-treatment.html>

Amid the uncertainty brought on by COVID-19, outpatient rehabilitation providers find themselves building programs and caring for COVID-19 "long-haulers." Sara Schuette, Director of Rehabilitation at ProMedica, will dive into the importance of evidence-based practice and share ProMedica's findings and strategies related to COVID-19 long-haul patients in the outpatient setting. She will also touch on evidence-based approaches to assessing and completing outcome measures on fatigue, brain fog, and breathing difficulties.

Demonstrating value: Managing and budgeting your outpatient rehabilitation team for success in 2022

<https://info.wellsky.com/managing-outpatient-rehabilitation-success.html>

Inconsistent patient volumes, staffing shortages, and other operational challenges have forced leaders to make hard decisions about budgets, staffing, and space. To make a successful business case for your outpatient rehabilitation department, you must leverage financial benchmarks, apply the principles of change management, appeal to the C-Suite perspective, and communicate persuasively to secure your seat at the negotiation table. During this session, experienced outpatient rehabilitation consultants John Britt and David Bowling show you exactly how to do that.

Staying ahead of the CMS auditor: Why documentation in outpatient rehabilitation matters

<https://info.wellsky.com/outpatient-rehabilitation-audit-preparation.html>

External audits in outpatient rehabilitation are ramping back up. And, since the Office of Inspector General (OIG) found that 61 percent of 2018 claims did not comply with Medicare medical necessity, coding, or documentation, outpatient rehabilitation organizations may now be targeted more than other settings of care. During this webinar, rehabilitation business expert John Britt and experienced healthcare lawyer Kelly Custer, JD, will review the factors that can trigger an external audit. Additionally, learn how proper documentation can minimize the chances of a CMS audit and the proper steps to follow during an audit.

Preparing for IRF-PAI 4.0: Why an accurate assessment of cognitive functioning matters

<https://info.wellsky.com/irf-pai-cognitive-assessment.html>

Section C of the IRF-PAI gives providers the opportunity to assess a patient's cognitive skills, including attention, orientation, and the ability to register and recall new information; under IRF-PAI 4.0, this section will receive a major overhaul. Inpatient rehabilitation providers must understand the impact of the interdisciplinary team on the patient's treatment plan. In this webinar, expert rehabilitation consultants Jane Snecinksi, FACHE, and Charlotte Geise, Ph.D., provide a comprehensive overview of the impact of these cognitive assessment changes.
